

Lesson 1: What is a conscience?

This half-term we are going to ask – how do people make moral decisions? A moral decision is deciding how to act in a way that is good. The study of these decisions is called ethics. Many people say their conscience helps them to make these decisions.

Your conscience is

This picture illustrates the different places people think they can get their conscience from.

Label the different icons with what they represent.

Circle the icons you think are the most important places we get our conscience from.

