

Lesson 3: Why did Catholics build lots of new churches in England in the last few hundred years?

Around 200 years ago a law was passed which meant Catholic Christians were able to worship freely. Before this they were punished for their religion, prevented from owning land and put in prison. Since this law passed Catholics have built many churches and cathedrals in Britain.

What was life like for Catholics in England hundreds of years ago?

Label this picture of Westminster Cathedral with different types of decoration that have been used.

